NEWSFEED THURSDAY: VANCOUVER GETS CARDED

RESTAURANT

From the team behind Cibo Trattoria and Uva Wine Bar, Red Card Sports Bar + Eatery, a new concept Euro sports bar, will gently launch to the public tomorrow, with official launch events involving celebrity sports guests planned for January 2010.

How it looks: The retro-chic room embraces its original 1908 brick and beam heritage with the addition of bold interior design features that include red leather chairs and black banquettes, a quartzite bar, beveled mirrors, and polished concrete floors. An impressive array of eighteen high-def TV's ensure guests won't miss a minute of play from any angle in the room, and to add some Italian flare, a shiny red Vespa is suspended from the entrance. The dramatic raised open kitchen, home to a high-tech wood burning pizza oven imported from Italy, provides it's own nightly performance as the kitchen brigade prep behind the line.

How it will taste: Familiar Italian dishes with West Coast twists feature prominently on the menu; Bruschetta, Insalate, Paninis, Pizzas, Pastas and Risottos are staples, while hearty Secondi (main) dishes include Osso Bucco Alla Milanese, Costine di Maiale Arroste (Fraser Valley Pork Ribs) and Guazzetto di Cozze (BC Mussels with white wine, garlic, chili and parsley). A global drinks list of cocktails, 16 draft beers, over 40 artisanal bottled beers, and an eclectic wine list completes the experience.

How it will play: Open Monday to Saturday. 11 a.m. to 1:45 a.m. and on Sunday. 11 a.m. to midnight. 900 Seymour Street. 604-689-4460. For those who may not understand the significance of the red card click [here.]
