HIP HOCKEY HANGOUTS

The puck drops here.

Whether you're a die-hard Canucks fan or proudly ride the bandwagon, now that it's playoff time, here are our fave spots to take in a game.

Score (1262 Davie St.)

Vancouver's quintessential gay sports bar. Located right on Davie, it's the most "cosmo"-friendly of the bunch and a great place to kick back, relax, and enjoy watching men slam into each other.

Relish (888 Nelson St.)

An old neighborhood favourite that's recently been renovated and relaunched (and media-maven Sean Horlor's new fave). Located just steps from the West End, come for the $3 beer and stay for the gnocchi poutine (seriously).

Red Card (900 Seymour St.)

A stylish new euro-themed sports bar with plasma screens in every direction, top-notch pizza and over 40 beers from around the world. If you're in the mood for a little nostalgia, it's located in the old Dufferin Hotel.

Cinema Public House (901 Granville St.)

Freshly opened last week, it's a welcomed addition to the Granville strip. Gorgeous room, creative cocktails and indie and electro tunes keep the Roxy crowd at bay.

Charlie's Restaurant & Bar (1265 Hamilton St.)

A swank Yaletown option. Grab a booth, nibble on gourmet pizza and sip artisan cocktails as the game's projected on the big screen.
